FOUNDER PORTRAIT

THE PRACTICE

Built to bridge the gap between European capital and African opportunity.

McWills Consulting is a business development consultancy serving growth-stage companies, leadership teams, and founders who need expert-level execution, not just theoretical advice.

We operate across four core disciplines—Strategy, BD, Talent, and Content. While our capabilities span global business development, our sharpest and most differentiated expertise lies in African market entry. With Nigerian roots and a Cyprus base, the founder established this practice to provide the on-ground intelligence European companies critically lack when looking South.

Our philosophy is simple: Intelligence before assumption. We do not hand clients a report and wish them luck. Alongside our network of specialists and partners across Nigeria, West Africa, North Africa, and South Africa, we work the problem with you.

> "If you want someone who has been in the problem before you have — let's talk."

1. Edit: “If you want someone who have been in the problem before you; let’s talk.”

We operate across four core disciplines: Strategy, BD, Talent, and Content. While our capabilities span global business development, our sharpest and most differentiated expertise lies in African market entry. With headquarters in Nigeria, the Founder established this practice to provide the on-ground Market intelligence, operation, and execution strategy that most businesses lack when expanding to a new market.

<!-- Section 2 -->
<h2 class="geo font-bold text-[24px] md:text-[28px] text-navy mt-14 mb-5">The mistake most European companies make</h2>

They treat Africa like a single market.

It is 54 countries. 54 different business cultures. 54 different regulatory environments. 54 different ways a deal can move or die. A strategy built on generalised Africa intelligence is not a strategy. It is an assumption dressed as preparation.

The companies that succeed in African markets and many do, consistently treat each market as what it actually is: a specific geography with specific dynamics, specific power structures, and specific ways that trust gets built before contracts get signed. The model, not the market, determines outcomes.

<!-- Pull quote 2 -->

"A strategy built on generalised Africa intelligence is not a strategy. It is an assumption dressed as preparation."

<!-- Section 3 — The vacancy -->
<h2 class="geo font-bold text-[24px] md:text-[28px] text-navy mt-14 mb-5">The vacancy that most companies are missing</h2>

P&G left Nigeria. GSK left. Bayer cut operations. Unilever scaled back manufacturing. Every headline treated these exits as a warning. They were not a warning. They were a vacancy.

Nigeria still has 220 million people. The companies left because of model failure, not market failure. They brought assumptions into a market that required preparation, and the market rejected the assumptions not the companies themselves.

MTN entered Nigeria in 2001 with a clear market thesis, the right local partnerships, and a model designed for how that market actually worked. Today they serve over 77 million subscribers; one-third of MTN Group's entire global revenue, from a single market. That is what preparation looks like when it meets an arrived market.

<!-- Highlight box -->

The core principle

"The opportunity is real. But it rewards preparation, not assumption. Enter narrow. Validate fast. Scale with evidence."

<!-- Section 4 — What good looks like -->
<h2 class="geo font-bold text-[24px] md:text-[28px] text-navy mt-14 mb-5">What good market entry intelligence actually looks like</h2>

Good intelligence is not a market report. Reports describe what has already happened. What you need before committing capital to a new market is validated, forward-looking intelligence: who the real decision-makers are and how they actually operate, which competitors are already in the market and how they are positioned, where the regulatory environment creates risk and where it creates advantage, and which relationships need to exist before a commercial conversation can even start.

That kind of intelligence does not come from a database. It comes from people who understand the market from the inside not from a spreadsheet, but from direct experience of how business moves on the ground.

In this order:
A pipeline is not a wishlist.
We build the infrastructure behind it

We design repeatable routes to revenue.
From commercial strategy and lead generation to BD-embedded support;
We build the engine, not just the plan.

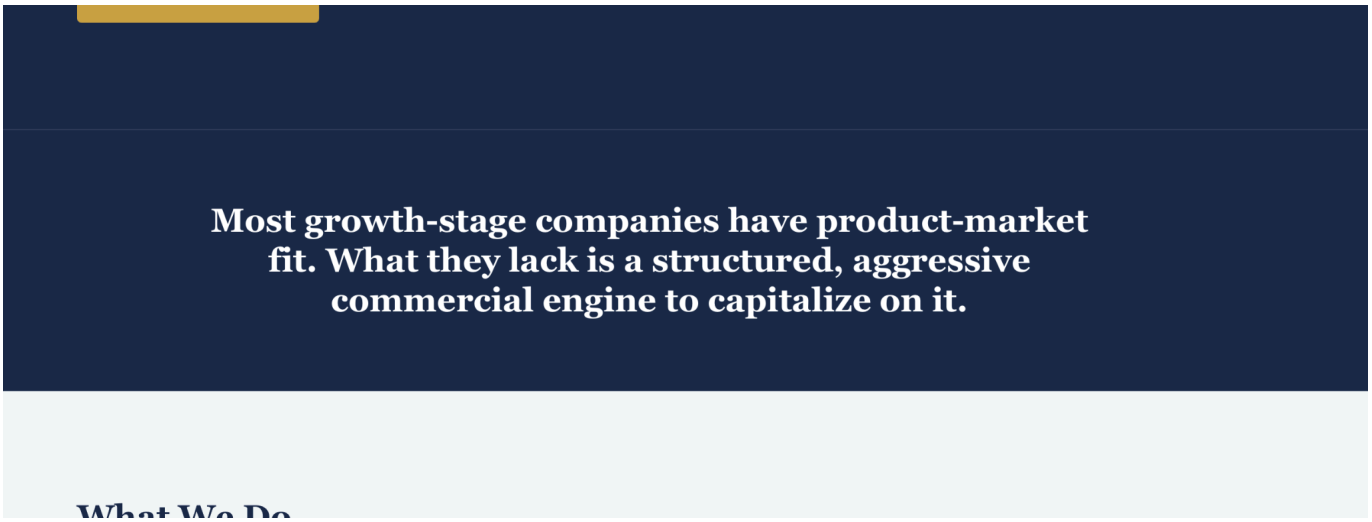
12. Center align the text below:



Most growth-stage companies have product-market fit.
What they lack is a structured, aggressive commercial engine to capitalize on it.
We fix that. Let's talk!

13. re-write:

Built to Connect Founders and Businesses with Growth Opportunities, Insights and Support with Strategy Execution.

14. Center align:

In this order:

The right people are a strategic decision, not an HR function.

We are not a recruitment agency.

We are a talent intelligence partner.

We source, assess, and secure the manpower that executes your growth strategy.

Scaling requires the right people, fast.
Getting it wrong costs more than just recruitment fees,
it costs momentum.

CASE CONTEXT

The MTN Nigeria Precedent

In 2001, global telecom analysts warned against entering Nigeria. MTN entered anyway. Today, MTN Nigeria boasts over 77 million subscribers and accounts for roughly one-third of the entire group's revenue. The market rewards those who enter narrow, prepare deeply, and scale with evidence.
